Dear Parents and carers,

Please find some links below to additional websites to those already recommended in our first letter and the Home Learning Projects for each class. We hope you find them useful. Please be assured that we are not expecting that you use all of them; we are trying to give you a range of resources to help you with your child's home learning.

All of the home learning resources below are FREE. Some are free documents; others are subscriptions that are free at the moment. These companies have shared their resources for free during school closures. Please be aware that some may charge after a certain date or after your free subscription is finished.

English

<https://new.phonicsplay.co.uk/>

This is a brilliant site for phonics based learning: It has been updated recently and it is free for parents to access during this time.

Jane Considine has now started a daily writing video which you can subscribe to via Youtube. She will guide a daily lesson at 9:45 which involves watching a video and writing sentences based on a part of the film. It is a little tricky to navigate and probably more suitable for Key Stage 2 children.

<http://www.wordsforlife.org.uk/>

This site has a range of on-line and downloadable activities that you can use.

<https://literacytrust.org.uk/>

This site also includes digital and printable activities as well as authors reading books aloud.

<https://medium.com/pobble/the-good-news-5392d10d3507>

This site has a template for children to write a 'Good News' story which they can then upload and share if they wish.

<https://literacywithmissp.com/category/home-schooling/>

This site has some really wonderful ideas for creative writing at home.

<https://authorfy.com/about/>

This site requires you to join but it is free and is a great way for children to listen to authors reading extracts from their books with lots of creative writing ideas. There are a variety of games, book club questions, arts and crafts sheets and more, and they're all based around the latest bestselling children's books.
